“David and Tom: today, February 22nd is going to be full of conflicting emotions. My brothers and I, having so recently lost our own father, know exactly what you're going through. I send my deepest sympathies and wish you warm memories to sustain you. And like Dan, I too remember Caludio the Beast dog! Really more of a pony from my point of view but what a great dog! Take good care both of you. Melanie

“He was my Uncle and will be missed by me. I had just talked to him a few weeks ago and he had this kind of sense of humor that always took me by surprised and he told me after I told him about my Dad's passing that he was "Older Than Death" We both laugh at that and I knew he was trying to ease my pain at my loss at the time. And it worked! I had too many conversations with him to even try to tell you would take a long time. But he always had time for you and boy could my Uncle talk....We had many a good chat and always he was a family man. And my Dad and him would talk up a storm. I was privy to those talks first hand. He was a good man and will be missed by many. Cousins, I Am Very Sorry For Your Loss! And I do know what you are going through. Please Call me anytime, Love Your Cousin, Doug

“ When we were very young children, we visited Uncle Bill in northern California. We rode on the back of Beast Dog (an enormous Great Dane, who growled when you stopped petting...). In the garage was a refrigerator and in the fridge was a human head, neatly sawn in half. I was both astonished that he'd show me this, a little kid, and intrigued at something so powerful and clearly important and full of Science and Learning. Uncle Bill was one of the first physicians I knew, and his casual, direct way with approaching education as a questioning, physical thing. A big guy, a big laugh, at ease in his own flesh. Godspeed, Uncle Bill.
